INTERESTING PHOTOGRAPHS OF RECENT EVENTS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

Yankee Tars in mix-up with British Bobbies—For an infraction of the Sunday laws two Yankee Tars were arrested at Aldwych, Sunday, March 9. A group of American soldiers and sailors, hearing of the affair, marched on to the Bow Street Police Station to effect a rescue. In the ensuing "mix-up" considerable damage resulted. The photograph shows a soldier, who had come to the aid of the Yank, being arrested.

British police clearing street after battle with Yankee soldiers and sailors. Clearing Bow and Wellington streets after the riot between the police and Yankee sailors and soldiers, who attempted a rescue of two of their countrymen, arrested for an infraction of the London Sunday laws, March 9.

Two thousand men of the Royal Canadian Regiment giving a farewell cheer for the mother land before sailing on the Adriatic from Liverpool on March 1. This regiment was among the first to reach the firing line in France.

Review of the new army of occupation by the King in Hyde Park. The photograph shows King George, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Prince of Wales interestedly watching the march past.

Peace-time scene at the docks in Ostend, Belgium—Where but a few months before U-Boats had docked, there is now fish boats, with their load of fish for the market, as Ostend once more resumes its peace-time status

Sending the Huns back to "Der Vaterland"—The deportation of thousands of German civilians, who have been interned in England since the start of the great war is now taking place. The photo shows a batch of 800 being marched under guard to a transport, which took them back to Germany.

CANADIAN TROOPS LEAVING SOUTHAMPTON---AIRSHIP'S MAIDEN FLIGHT

Canada's fighting men returning home. Stirring scenes were witnessed at Southampton on March 17, when over 5000 Canadian soldiers embarked on the Olympic, which brought them back to their "ain countree."

Ship ahoy, for their own country and friends! Canadian soldiers aboard the Olympic, which sailed from Southampton on March 17. Do the boys look pleased at the prospect of home? Well, rather.

A successful maiden flight of 4½ hours was made by the admiralty airship, R34, over the Clyde River and district on March 14. This photograph shows the huge craft, which is a sister ship of R33, and has been built by Messrs. Beardmore, about to land on her return from the trial trip.

Scene in the harbor of Neufahwasser, Germany, showing the unloading of foodstuffs shipped from the U. S. to Germany, according to the terms of peace.

King George reviewing the Young Guards in Hyde Park. The King's review of the four brigades was a memorable spectacle. These men are now keeping the watch upon the Rhine.

This photograph shows a merry group of factory girls who helped in the construction of the airship, R33, cheering their handiwork as she took the air. Apparently the English girls are "carrying on" with as much vigor as ever.

This picture shows members of the Women's Legion Motor Drivers, who are now attached to the Canadian Forestry Corps in Windsor Park, washing and cleaning one of their cars.

The first aerial merchandise service in the history of the world. These airplanes made their trip successfully between Ghent and England, carrying 18 one hundred lb. bags each.

Pte. Thomas Keating, marked with an X, and some of his chums.

DISAPPOINTED.

Bessie—What did you think of the lady's first song?

Effie—I was disappointed.

"How so?"

"She sang 'I Am Going Far Away Far Away to Leave You Now,' and she didn't go."

Bringing in a raft of logs for the Midland mills. The bay here is always full of saw logs, owing to the situation of the town in a lumbering district.

Big coal handling plant at Midland, Ontario. This year 50,000 tons of coal will be landed for distribution thru western. This is one of the busiest, livest towns in Ontario.

The Midland elevator with a storage capacity of one million bushels. A large concrete addition is being added, which will aid materially in the storing of Canadian grain.

Midland is one of the busiest little towns in Ontario. Immense elevators, with a capacity of 6,000,000 bushels, send out some 35,000,000 bushels of grain every year, which equals 35,000 carloads.
